MINISTER SILENT IN FELON'S CELL.

Sat Through the Night Without Attempting to Seek Repose.

AUTOPSY IS HELD ON VICTIM

Disclosed the Fact That Avis Linnell Was Soon to Have Become a Mother—Richeson Hanged in Effigy Before Hyannis, Mass., Church.

United Press Telegram.
BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 21.—With head bowed and broken in spirit, Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson today sits in cell No. 42 of "murderers row" in Charles street jail. He refuses to speak and is guarded constantly for fear that he may attempt to commit suicide. He sat throughout the night thinking deeply and did not sleep.

An autopsy disclosed the fact that Avis Linnell, the girl, who took the cyanide of potassium, was soon to have become a mother. Her reputation was blameless until she fell under the spell of her minister-lover, Miss Edmonds is older than Richeson and is not beautiful—but she possesses a half million dollars.

The missing link in the chain of evidence against Richeson is to prove how he gave the poison to the Linnell girl. This the police say they will explain in a few hours. They have a witness, they claim, who heard Richeson telephone Avis, saying:

"I will see you Saturday afternoon. It seems a long time until then."

The police will try to prove that he was with her the afternoon before her death.

Richeson's fiancée and her father are convinced of Richeson's innocence. The girl is prostrated.

HYANNIS, Mass., Oct. 21.—Until noon today an effigy of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson swung in the breeze from an old elm tree in front of the Baptist church where the minister first met the girl who took the poison. The effigy was swung there after prayer meeting last night. During the meeting prayers of forgiveness were offered for the girl.

Two placards were attached to the effigy, which had been clothed in ministerial garb. One of them read:

"Guilty—Rev. Richeson, Sen. Luke 17, 2. 'It were better for him that a millstone were hanged around his neck and he be cast into the sea, lest he offend one of these little ones.'"

The other placard bore the words: "Vigilance Committee."

The effigy was then pulled up by the rope which held it.

J. Wickerson, a Boston, salesman, stopping across the street, cut the figure down this morning. He said he could not stand the strain of seeing the gruesome thing swinging in the wind across the dreary background of the white colored sky.

The Rev. Charles Croft, who will occupy the pulpit of the immortal Baptist church tomorrow, announced this afternoon that Richeson is preparing a formal statement which is to be read by Croft tomorrow.

Sensationalism was the keynote of Richeson's preaching, members of his congregation say, his topics being chiefly on the white slave traffic, political rottenness and waves of crime. His favorite subject was a bitter denunciation of men who betray women.

Many of his parishioners object to his line of talk and a large number resigned. He was, however, a favorite with the young people, especially with the girls. He had a southern courtesy which made a hit with the women, and it was chiefly through the influence of the female members of the congregation that he kept his job.

The membership is divided now as to whether his resignation should not be demanded.

Taft to Reach Here at Night

Unless the schedule is changed from its present arrangement, President Taft will pass through Connellsville about midnight of October 21. He is due to arrive in Morgantown at 3 A. M. and will leave there at 1:15 the same afternoon.

This is the tentative program as resolved by the University of West Virginia authorities. Under this arrangement the President's special is evidently intended to run from Pittsburgh to Connellsville as a section of No. 10.

Farmer Caught Under His Wagon Had to Literally Dig Himself Out.

Special to The Courier.

SMITHFIELD, Oct. 21.—As William Conn, a prominent farmer of South Georges township, was returning from Smithfield where he had mowed a family from here Tuesday, his wagon upset at the old Wharton coke works. It trapped him under the bed of the wagon, and kept him cooped under it from 8 o'clock in the evening until 3 o'clock next morning. The road where it happened crosses on old ash dump of the Wharton works and the heavy rains had made a bad wash out at the point where his wagon upset. He literally dug the ashes and earth away with his hands wearing his finger nails down to the quick in extricating himself. He is in a serious condition from his exertions and exposure. It rained nearly all the time he was imprisoned.

There was no one living near enough to the scene of the accident to hear his calls for help. He extricated himself once and just as he thought he was released the bank gave away and the wagon slid over him again and he had to repeat all over the operation of digging himself out.

Date Decided for City Institute

Superintendent S. P. Ashe has practically decided upon the dates for the city institute to be held here this season. A new departure will be inaugurated, holding the institute at such time that it will not interfere with the Christmas vacation of the teachers but will enable them to attend the sessions of the County Institute at Uniontown.

The dates that have been decided upon are Friday and Saturday, November 30 and December 1, the days immediately following Thanksgiving, and January 25, 26 and 27. Mr. Ashe believes that any disadvantage caused by holding two widely separated sessions will be offset by the ability to secure better instructors, the lack of conflict with the regular county institutes and the fact that it will not deprive the teachers of their Christmas holiday.

Superintendent Ashe is communicating with the leading instructors of the State and expects to have an exceptionally strong corps to disseminate learning and information to the local teaching staff.

Two Inquests to be Held Tuesday

The body of Adam Cornish of Swedehaven, who died Thursday night at the Cottage State hospital of injuries sustained when he was struck by the Duquesne Limited at the B. & O. station, was removed this morning by funeral director J. L. Stader to the Polish church at Emerson, from which place services were held. Interment in the Polish cemetery at Scottsdale.

Coroner H. J. Bell of Dawson came to Connellsville yesterday afternoon and after making an investigation into the man's death decided to hold an inquest Tuesday evening at Funeral Director J. L. Stader's rooms. The jury is composed of the following: W. J. Haer, Perry Langford, Vince Barry, Hart Colvin, Kent Clifton and S. S. Clark.

On the same evening and at the same place Coroner Bell will hold an inquest into the death of John Knight, who was killed in the Trotter murders. The jury is composed of Harry Berlin, W. J. Haer, Irvin Pringley, Dr. W. F. Shotts, J. G. Gorman and J. L. Evans.

"Pluggie" Says He is in Fine Shape

Manager M. A. Coffey of the Connellsville basketball team this morning received a letter from "Pluggie" Doherty in which the sturdy guard says he is in tip top condition and anxious for the season to open. "Pluggie" has been playing basketball among the Worcester, Mass., teams and is down to weight.

Mr. Coffey states that he has also heard from Big John Ahern who states that the terms of his contract were entirely satisfactory but that he thinks seriously of quitting basketball in order to finish a course in dentistry. Although the acquisition of Donohue leaves the Cokers well fortified at center, the appearance of Ahern would be welcomed and he will be brought on, if possible.

ing the afternoon Kloran orchestra rendered a special musical program and the affair was a grand success in every respect. Not the smallest detail was overlooked in arranging the reception and each year the affair becomes of more importance to the mothers of Connellsville and vicinity.

Special attention is paid the babies by the management of the store and when "Baby Day" was introduced it was greatly appreciated by the mothers. From the first it proved a great success. Each year the attendance continues to increase. Over 500 invitations were sent out and a general invitation was issued to all babies who had been overlooked. Many of the babies present had been weighed by the firm and in this manner their names were on the list.

For some time past it has been the custom of the management to weigh all new babies coming to Connellsville and nearby towns, that is if the firm is notified or hears in any other way of the visit of the stock. A pair of scales is sent to the happy home and the little stranger's name is taken and is presented with a souvenir.

Babies who now reside in many distant cities have been weighed at Dunn's and while it is impossible for their mothers to bring them to the baby show they feel always sent an invitation to show that they are not forgotten by the firm. The success and popularity of Dunn's "Baby Day" is due greatly to the congenial manner and kind treatment by the management and their employees.

Among the out of town babies present were Catherine Henry, Edith Durbin, J. C. Durbin, Maude M. Cochran, Dawson; Rebecca Klingerman, Walter Klingerman, Harry Edward White, Ethel May Davis, Thomas Lynch Miller, Nora May McFarland, Frank J. Chair, Dorothy Miller, Joseph M. Chalkin, Clarence Renner, Scottsdale; Lewis Mahon, Genevieve Gwoon, Vanderhill; Harriet Nemon, Mary Madeline Warner, Catherine Shunk, John J. Williams, Margaret Pierce, Dunbar; Barbara Heyser, Evelyn Pie, Uniontown; Gortude Cotton, Dunbar; Ronald and Ruby Plack, Lewis, Normalville; Harry Moore, Pittsburg; Gladys Shul, McKeessport; Mildred Irene Gordon, Scottsdale; Mildred Rongian, Broad Ford; Alice Ruth Hay, McKeessport.

HUNDREDS OF BABIES AT DUNN'S STORES.

Annual Reception for the Little Tots Was Held Yesterday.

THROGGED BIG CARPET ROOM

And Came With Their Mammies From Connellsville and Nearby Towns in the Young Region—Souvenirs Were Given to the Little Folks as Usual.

Yesterday was "Baby Day" at E. Dunn's store. From 1 o'clock up until nearly 4 o'clock mothers and their babies were coming from all parts of town to attend the reception which is an annual event. The attendance broke all records. It is estimated that fully 600 babies, representing families from Connellsville, Scottsdale, Vanderhill, Uniontown, Pittsburg, Dawson, Broad Ford and other nearby towns were present. Every thing was in favor of the babies, even the weather being desired. The sun shone brightly and if the weather had been otherwise it could not have been more desirable.

"Baby Day" was inaugurated several years ago by E. Dunn and if the attendance continues to increase larger quarters will have to be secured to accommodate the little guests. The hour for the reception was 2 o'clock and by 1:30 o'clock a large crowd had assembled. Babies were in great demand yesterday and mothers were in need of assistance, as each baby was well taken care of. Only those who had the opportunity of attending the reception can conceive an idea of the beautiful picture the little tots presented. The youngest baby present was a month old, and the next oldest was five weeks old. From that age they ranged to 5 years.

On their arrival at the store the name of each baby, its age, the names of its parents, and address was taken. Each baby was then presented with a souvenir. The boys were given large rubber balls and the girls, baby dolls. An envelope containing paper dolls with complete outfit were also given each baby. Had there been a prize offered for the prettiest baby it would have been a difficult task for the judge to decide which baby was entitled to the prize, as there certainly were many beautiful babies present. Attention in the dimly lit white lace trimmed frocks, with a touch of color introduced by delicate shades of ribbons the little tots presented a charming picture and were admired by the many visitors who were present to witness the gathering of babies. Each mother took a fond delight in presenting her baby and had looked forward to the reception with eager delight. The babies who were just beginning to toddle walked about the room and were eager to make friends with one another. In this way many of them amused themselves.

The entire carpet room on the second floor was thrown open to the babies and early in the afternoon it was almost impossible to get through the crowd. From 2 until 4 o'clock the crowd was the largest and the employees and their aides were kept busy looking after registering and entertainment of the babies.

Business cares were laid aside for the afternoon and special attention was given to the babies, who with their childish prattle kept things lively for an hour or more. The management had made special arrangements not only for the comfort of the babies but for their mothers as well. In the rear of the store was a neatly furnished rest room with several comfortable rockers where mothers sought and greatly appreciated by many of the mothers. The decorations were unusually pretty, both on the first and second floor of the large store. Autumn leaves and ferns were artistically arranged on the first floor while the second floor was attractive with the national colors, red, white and blue. From the corner of the ceiling hung a large American flag, while smaller flags were arranged on the walls and over the doorway. The rest room was decorated with ferns and palms. During the afternoon Kloran orchestra rendered a special musical program and the affair was a grand success in every respect. Not the smallest detail was overlooked in arranging the reception and each year the affair becomes of more importance to the mothers of Connellsville and vicinity.

High School Off to Greensburg

Connellsville High School will meet the strong Greensburg team at Greensburg this afternoon and a hard fought game is expected. The locals have not yet been defeated this season but Greensburg will probably be the most difficult proposition they will have to face this season. The Greensburg team is even stronger this year than last. The Connellsville boys yesterday received their new uniforms. They will wear their black jerseys, with a brilliant orange stripe, in the contest this afternoon, and there will be no trouble distinguishing the Cokers warriors in the scrimmages. Chief Coach Smith this morning announced his lineup as follows:

Ends, A. Buttermore and McCormick; tackles, Lynd and Moore; guards, Foley and Herd; center, Stanford; quarterback, Mosser; halfbacks, Ford and McNulty; fullback, Bishop. The substitutes to accompany the eleven will be Shultz, Marshall, Miller, Cox and Boyd.

Left end is still a problem with Alde out of it and the coaches are required to do some experimenting. This will be Buttermore's first game at end but the plucky little quarterback will in all probability make his presence felt.

Once Again There is No Ball Game

United Press Telegram.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—For a fourth successive time the fourth game of the series between New York and Philadelphia was postponed on account of the rain. The World's Series is threatened with serious lack of interest because of the pervasiveness of the weather man. If conditions will permit the contest will be played here Monday.

Rain and wet grounds caused to-day's postponement. The field was not in shape for baseball and the umpires, who visited the grounds early, so advised the National Commission, which is now in New York.

The committee decided to hold a general meeting in the Council room next Tuesday evening at 7:30, when the principals and janitors of the various schools will be expected to take part in the discussion.

Already arrangements have been made to have two bands in line, the Tenth Regiment and the West Side organizations, with Company D and the West Side Volunteer Fire Department as an escort.

At the meeting Tuesday the prizes will be decided upon. The parade this year will be along more elaborate lines than ever before. The prizes will be more extensive, there will be more red fire and an abundance of doughnuts and apples for the kids in line.

The line of march will be mapped out and committees appointed at Tuesday's meeting.

FEVER SPREADING; SEVERAL NEW CASES

South Connellsville Reports Some of Them and South Side.

SEWER IN BAD CONDITION

In the Hollow Below Aetna Street and Complaint is Made by the Citizens Living in That Neighborhood—Typhoid in Dunbar Township.

Three new cases of typhoid fever have developed at South Connellsville. The victims are Edward McCarthy, aged about 12 years, son of J. J. McCarthy of Broadway street, Carl Moore, a helper at the B. & O. machine shops, and Mrs. Shilber of Race street.

Miss Catherine Summerville, who has been ill of fever at her home in South Connellsville, is convalescent.

At the home of William Morgan on Aetna street the oldest boy is ill with scarlet fever. The house was placarded yesterday. In this same vicinity there are several cases of typhoid fever. The residents of that section of town are complaining of the bad condition of a sewer. It is the main sewer running down through the hollow to the river and sewage has been oozing out and creating a stench for weeks. By some it is blamed for the fever that has originated in that vicinity.

Connellsville is not alone with its fall prevalence of typhoid fever. There are many cases throughout Dunbar township and the mountains as usual in the fall are similarly afflicted.

The weather during the past few weeks is also being blamed for the wave of sickness that appears to have swept the town and surrounding country in a firm grip. Diphtheria and coughs and colds are chronic. The diphtheria wave, which threatened to become epidemic, has abated somewhat and the distribution of antitoxin by the State is falling off just now. Two weeks ago it was in greater demand than at any time since the agency was established here at Frank Hunsdon's drug store. Antitoxin is furnished free by the State to destitute patients.

Rev. R. E. Cairns, pastor of the Methodist Protestant church, was troubled with a severe cold for several days and now pneumonia is feared. His pulpit will be occupied tomorrow by Rev. C. A. Sturm. Physicians report that they are unusually busy and are inclined to blame the weather for most of the sickness.

Mike Kee Had Pockets Rifled

Mike Kee told Burgess Evans he was held up by three negroes last night, who robbed him of his money. He was picked up on Water street by Officer Joseph O'Bryon last night, slightly intoxicated. He was discharged. The police suspect that Mike was visiting in the Tondorion district and had his pockets picked there.

Lucy Layton was given 12 hours for disorderly conduct at home. It is said she also attended yesterday to prevent her brother, Major Subbottom, from moving into an East Main street dwelling, family troubles causing the disturbance.

New Market Opened Today

The Connellsville Market opened for business this morning in the North Pittsburg street storehouse formerly occupied by M. H. Feldstein & Company, adjoining the Citizens National Bank. The windows were decorated last night for the first time and attracted considerable attention.

In the rear the meat market is located while on one side are the canned goods and the other side fruit and vegetables. If appearance counts for much the new concern should enjoy great trade.

UNIONTOWN, Oct. 21.—At a conference held at noon today between the County Commissioners and Solicitor R. F. The commission that Squire W. P. Clark now holds expires the first Monday in December.

ROBERT M. SMITH CALLED BY DEATH.

Veteran of the Civil War and Old West Side Resident.

SERVED UNDER SCHOONMAKER

In the 14th Pennsylvania Cavalry and Participated in Some Hard Fighting, Famed for a While in Dunbar Township.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock Robert M. Smith, a Civil War veteran and one of the oldest residents of the West Side, died at his late home on Main street following a month's illness. Mr. Smith had been in poor health for the past year, but was able to be about up until a month ago. Since that time he had been confined to his bed. At times he would rally and would seem much brighter. Hopes for his recovery since his last illness were never entertained by his relatives and friends. He peacefully slept away. Death was due to the infirmities of old age. Funeral services will be held from his late home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. R. C. Wolf, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, and Rev. J. L. Proudfoot, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate.

Mr. Smith was born in the southern part of Fayette county. He was of Scotch descent and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith. He was born on a farm, his father being at that time one of the most prominent farmers of this section. For a number of years he resided on what was then known as the Hogg farm in the West Side. The family then moved to Leisenring No. 1, to what is now known as the Gallagher-Johnston farm. Deceased followed the occupation of a farmer for some time. He married Miss Agnes Stauffer, a sister of A. B. Stauffer of the West Side. To the union six children were born, three of whom survive.

He enlisted with Captain Zadeck Walker's Company B, 14th Pennsylvania cavalry, of which regiment Col. James Schoonmaker was colonel. He enlisted in Connellsville September 2, 1862, and was honorably discharged May 25, 1865. While in the army he looked after the shoeing of the horses. Mr. Smith had resided in Connellsville for about 40 years. For a number of years he resided on First street and about 15 years ago he moved into the Whitaker property on Main street, West Side. His wife died about 25 years ago and of late years his daughter, Fannie Smith resided with him. Mr. Smith was a member of the Union Veteran Legion. The Legion will have charge of the funeral and pallbearers will be members of the Legion.

Mr. Smith up until about 12 years ago owned several teams and engaged in general hauling. After retiring from active work he disposed of his teams and since that time Mr. Smith lived a very quiet life. There was not a better known man in the West Side than Mr. Smith. He was a great reader and in this manner many hours of his life were spent. In addition to his daughter, Fannie, he is survived by two sons, Barnett, of Scottsdale, a well known P. R. R. engineer, Robert M. Jr., of Sedalia, Mo., a traveling salesman for the Standard Oil Company. Two brothers, William and George, of Charleston, Mo., also survive.

The Ladies' Aid Met Last Night

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church met last evening at the home of Mrs. R. C. Davis on Madison avenue. The attendance was unusually large and the meeting was one of unusual interest. At the conclusion of the business meeting a short program was carried out.

Mrs. E. A. E. Palmquist gave a very interesting reading as did Miss Norma Woodall. A piano solo was well rendered by Master Charles Davis. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Johnson on Third street, West Side.

Wm. Rockefeller Home.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(Special.)—William Rockefeller and his personal physician, Dr. W. S. Campbell, returned from Europe today. Mr. Rockefeller was apparently in good health. Dr. Campbell denied that Rockefeller was suffering from cancer. He said the sea trip was taken to benefit a throat affection.

Services at Hospital.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian Church will hold services at the Cottage State hospital tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Boosts Pittsburg as Big Mining Center

That Pittsburg will be shown to the world to be the greatest of mining centers was the prediction made yesterday by Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the Federal Bureau of Mines, who was here in connection with the great national mine safety demonstration to be held on the morning of October 31. Dr. Holmes is much pleased with the way the operators and the United Mine Workers are co-operating to make the affair a success.

"It seems from the splendid spirit that is being shown," said Dr. Holmes, "that both the mine operators and the mine workers of this region are determined to place Pittsburg before the American people as the greatest mining center in this or any other country. No better co-operative work has ever been done before in the Pittsburg district. For example, the coal operators of the Pittsburg district have all ordered their mines closed on October 31, in order that all the mine managers, superintendents and other mine officials could be in Pittsburg on that date.

"In the same good co-operative spirit for the success of this movement, the officials of the United Mine Workers in this district have just issued a circular, signed by District President, Francis Feehan, and the executive committee, heartily endorsing the demonstration, and urging every mine worker who can possibly do so to attend. Mr. Feehan recites the fact that as past international conventions made an urgent appeal to the United States Congress to have the National Bureau of Mines established for the purpose of investigating the causes of accidents in the mining industry and devise methods whereby the great loss of life, which is annually taking place in the industry would be reduced to the minimum, it is therefore important that every mine worker give his co-operation and assistance to the Bureau of Mines in its undertaking.

"There are in the Pittsburg district and immediately adjoining territory no less than 150,000 miners. No doubt every available square foot of space in Forbes Field will be occupied by these miners. Never before in the history of Pittsburg has there been such a combined movement among the operators and miners working together for the benefit of Pittsburg and for the welfare of the mining interests.

"It seems well for the future that the citizens of Pittsburg should recognize this co-operation on the part of the mine's and should do everything in their power to encourage it in the future.

Case Dismissed Against Morelli

The case against Joe Morelli of the West Side, on a charge of selling liquor without a license was dismissed last evening on account of lack of evidence against the defendant. Morelli was arrested something ago, the charge being made by County Detective Frank McLaughlin. Since his arrest an effort was made to secure sufficient evidence but with no avail. Morelli conducts a small store on Eighth street, West Side. The information was made before Judge P. M. Butterworth of the West Side.

SOCIETY.

Fancy Work Party.

Dainty appointments suggestive of Halloween were effectively carried out at a fancy work party at which Mrs. F. C. Rose was hostess yesterday afternoon at her home on North Pittsburg street. The affair was one of the most cleverly arranged social functions of the season, the decorations being unusually handsome. A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in a very attractive manner. The doorways and chandeliers were adorned with beautifully shaded autumn leaves and Jack-o'-lanterns. Large bouquets of chrysanthemums, dahlias and cosmos were artistically arranged in all the rooms. Yellow shades were used on the candle sticks. Twenty-eight ladies were present and spent a very delightful afternoon at fancy work and other various amusements. A feature amusement of the afternoon and one which afforded much amusement for the guests was a guessing contest. Seated in a large pumpkin were five vegetables and each lady was asked to guess what vegetables were in the pumpkin. Mrs. W. H. Thomas proved to be the best guesser in the crowd.

About 4.30 o'clock a handsomely arranged luncheon was served. The same color scheme prevailed in the luncheon, which was served in three courses. The ice cream was served in baskets fashioned from oranges. The handkerchiefs were tied with bows of yellow silk ribbon. The sides were Misses Agnes Percy, Margaret Rose and Ella Wetherbee, were dainty white frocks with yellow ribbon waives. The out of town guests were Mrs. Charles Schick of Uniontown and Mrs. Harry Porter of Scotland. The favors were large yellow chrysanthemums.

Tragic Result of Old English Law

LONDON, Oct. 20.—In the heart of the financial district of London a man swallowed poison from a vial and fell dying in the street. A policeman picked him up and carried him into a drug store. "Clank and water—quick!" he shouted. "Three pence, please," said the druggist. The policeman had no money. No money was found in the pockets of the dying man. The druggist would not prescribe medicine or sell it without being paid. The policeman rushed the suicide again in his arms, and dashed out into the street, and into a hairdresser's shop where chalk and water was procured. By then the man was dead.

At the inquest Robert Rembridge, Secretary of the Pharmaceutical Society, said: "I do not blame the chemist. His position—indeed, the position of every chemist and druggist in Great Britain—is controlled by an act passed in 1815 which remains unchanged today. A druggist under that act is liable to a heavy fine if he prescribes while failure to prescribe may involve fatal results—as in this case."

MILLINERY MODES.

Tall Hats Are the Winners This Season.

TWO SMART FALL HATS.

Tall hats of medium size are the leaders in the new millinery this fall. Many of these crowns are so high that the models have earned for themselves the names of "operation hat" and "sky-scraper creation," but the crown of moderate altitude is going to be taken up by the best dressed women, while the exaggerated creation with enormous crown will be left severely alone. In the cut are two very smart hats. The plume, with Indian bow trimming, is very good looking, while the tall crowned hat with an uncurled ostrich feather for its trimming is mighty fetching.

In a Woman's World. Now that the nights are beginning to lengthen the soft velvety light of the lamp has a peculiar charm. In a country cottage or for a girl's room at any time a shade of flowered cretonne is pretty and appropriate and should be closely plaited in the empire style, with a garland of flowers surrounded by a ruffled ribbon.

The sweetest of shades may be made of white muslin with applique rousin flowers, and in the bedroom, whether the light is shaded from a lamp or from an electric globe, daintiness is completely expressed by a washing cover of broderie anglaise or of muslin trimmed with lace motifs.

Lace frills are again to be seen, and shades of liberty satin are surrounded with deep lace, the pattern being picked out in ribbon work, while a trail of flowers is added to the ornamentation. A pleasant occupation is the making of shades for lamps. The gayly colored bead fringes are easily made at home, and stringing the beads is a lazy pastime which takes no toll of either physical or mental fatigue.

The Railing Passion. An Englishwoman who was famed in her village for her economical bent took by mistake a quantity of mercurial poison, the antidote for which comprises the whites of eggs. When this antidote was being administered, the order for which the unfortunate lady had overheard, she managed to murmur, almost unconsciously: "Mary, Mary! Save the yolks for the puddings!"

One of the Huge Side Jabots. One cannot wear too large a jabot now, provided the largeness is all on one side. The new jabots reach over to the top of the sleeve at the left side and must be pinned in place to keep them from tumbling about untidily. Sometimes a tiny hook is sewed to the under side of the jabot and a corresponding loop to the shoulder of the bodice beneath. The jabot pictured is of fine lawn edged with Irish lace, and there is a strip of the Irish insertion down the center to which the pinned frill is attached. The stock is of tucked lawn edged with a band of the Irish insertion at the top.

The Color Luncheon. One of the prettiest church social affairs ever given in Scottdale was the color luncheon by the Woman's Home Missionary Society at the Methodist Episcopal Church last evening. The luncheon was given in the banquet hall, and six tables decorated most beautifully each with a single color were used. The guests were given four minutes at each table, and the luncheon served was of different color at each table, at a tap of the bell the party progressing forward to the next table.

RENEWING OPTIONS

For Big Power Proposition on the Cheat River.

It leaked out at Morgantown this week that Benedict & Troen, the Pennsylvania oil men who are said to be backed by the White syndicate of New York and London, have completed their surveys for their proposed power development of Cheat river. It is said that several New York engineers have recently spent several weeks in the Cheat river territory making final surveys.

It is also reported that the options which the West Penn or Kuhn interests took during the spring and summer are expiring and that these interests are making efforts to secure renewals. The interests have about 1,400 acres of Cheat river property under option, according to the statements of engineers, at an average cost of about $75 per acre. If the options are renewed it will enable the Kuhn interests to control the Cheat situation for another six months without any real outlay of money. Some of the property, it is stated, is being taken up. Agreements were reached in each of the seven condemnation suits filed by the Mountain Park Land Company.

The Benedict & Troen interests plan the construction of a new dam across Cheat river near Cheat Haven almost at the location where the present tests are being made by the Kuhn interests, and another at Rockeyon, on Sandy. Work will probably not begin before spring.

Although it has been frequently stated at Morgantown that there were possibilities that the two big interests in the battle for control of Cheat river would be able to reach an amicable agreement, engineers who have been in the territory and who are more or less informed as to the matters, state that the fight will be up in the West Virginia courts for decision. Just what proceedings will be taken is not known. It is possible that priority of right will enter largely into the question.

SEVERE ITCHING AND BURNING ALL OVER

Scalp, Body, Hands, Limbs Covered with Scales, Could Not Stand Torture, Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

"About three years ago I was attacked with a very severe itching and burning all over my body and finally my skin broke until my body looked like a piece of raw meat. I did believe that I could not stand the torture any longer, while all the time I was using the salve and the wash ordered by my physician without relief. When I was advised to go to a skin specialist I went with no better results. My body was covered with large white scales, with scales on my hands, arms and lower limbs. In about a week my scalp was covered with scales which looked like dandruff but became worse each day until at the end of another week the scales were as large as on a child's head in my head was unbearable. My hair was coming out in clumps until it looked so bad I was obliged to go to the streets."

"I used for soap for a shampoo but it took no effect. At the end of three weeks the back of my head was completely bald. It was a sight when I decided to try the Cuticura treatment. I bought a box of Cuticura Soap and ointment and used them for a week. I was cured. My hair has grown more than an inch in length. Before using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment I lost all of my finger nails and my hands were raw and could not put them in water. At I had tried them sooner I would have saved a few hundred dollars." (Signed) Mrs. J. E. Rickenbacker, Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 24, 1911.

CHAPTER XII.

Instead of returning to the city on Monday, Daylight rented the butcher's horse for another day and crossed the head of the valley to its eastern hills. As on the previous day, just for the joy of it, he followed cattle-trails at haphazard and worked his way up toward the summit. Coming out upon a wagon road that led upward, he followed it for several miles, emerging in a small, mountain-encircled valley, where half a dozen poor ranchers farmed the vine-grapes on the steep slopes. Beyond the road pitched upward. Dense chaparral covered the exposed hillside, but in the creases of the canyons huge spruce trees grew, and wild oats and flowers.

Late in the afternoon he broke through, and followed a well-defined trail down a dry canyon. The dry canyon gave place to one with a slender ribbon of running water. The trail ran into a wood-road, and the wood-road emerged across a small flat upon a slightly traveled country road. There were no farms in this immediate section, and no houses. The soil was meager, the bedrock either close to the surface or constituting the surface itself. Mesquites and scrub-oak, however, flourished and waited the road on either side with a jungle growth. And out a runway through this growth a man suddenly scuttled in a way that reminded Daylight of a rabbit.

He was a little man, in patched overalls; bareheaded, with a cotton shirt open at the throat and down chest. The man was ruddy-brown in his face, and by it his sandy hair was bleached on the ends to peroxide blonde. He signed to Daylight to halt, and held up a letter.

"If you're going to town, I'd be obliged if you mail this," he said.

"I sure will," Daylight put it into his coat pocket. "Do you live hereabouts, stranger?"

But the little man did not answer. He was gazing at Daylight in a surprised and steadfast frown.

"I know you," the little man announced. "You're Elam Harlan—Burning Daylight, the papers call you. Am I right?"

Daylight nodded.

"Well, I'm glad I wrote that letter this afternoon," the little man went on. "For else I'd have missed seeing you. I've seen your photo in the papers many a time, and I've a good memory for faces. I recognized you at once. My name's Ferguson."

"Do you live hereabouts?" Daylight repeated his query.

"Oh, yes. I've got a little shack back here, in the bush a hundred yards and a pretty spring, and a few fruit trees and berry bushes. Come in and take a look. And that spring is a dandy. You never tasted water like it. Come in and try it."

Walking and leaving his horse, Daylight followed the quickstepping, eager little man through the green tunnel and emerged abruptly upon the clearing, it clearing it might be called, where wild nature and man's earth-scratching were inextricably blended. It was a tiny nook in the hills, protected by the steep walls of a canyon mouth. Here were several large oaks, evidencing a richer soil. The oaks of ages from the hillside had slowly formed this deposit of fat earth. Under the oaks, almost buried in them, stood a rough, unpainted cabin, the wide veranda of which, with chairs and hammocks, advertised an out-of-door bedroom. Daylight's keen eyes took in everything. The clearing was irregular, following the patches of the best soil, and every fruit tree and berry bush, and even each vegetable plant, had the water personally conducted to it. The tiny irrigation channels were everywhere, and along some of them the water was running.

"What Do You Think of It, Eh?"

Ferguson looked eagerly into his visitor's face for signs of appreciation. "What do you think of it, eh?"

"Hand-reared and nurtured, every blessed tree," Daylight laughed, but the joy and satisfaction that shone in his eyes contented the little man. "Why, d'ye know, I know every one of those trees as if they were sons of mine. I planted them, nursed them, fed them, and brought them up. Come on and peep at the spring."

"It's sure a hummer," was Daylight's verdict, after due inspection and sampling, as they turned back for the house.

The interior was a surprise. The cooking being done in the small, lean-to kitchen, the whole cabin formed a large living-room. A great table in the middle was comfortably littered with books and magazines. All the available wall space, from wall to ceiling, was occupied by filled bookshelves. It seemed to Daylight that he had never seen so many books assembled in one place. Skins of wildcat, coon and deer lay about on the pine-board floor.

Daylight found himself charmed and made curious by the little man. Why was he hiding away here in the chaparral, he and his books? So it was, when between them they had washed and wiped the dishes and put them away, and had settled down to a comfortable smoke, that Daylight put his question.

"Look here, Ferguson. Every since we got together, I've been casting about to find out what's wrong with you, to locate a screw loose somewhere, but I'll be damned if I've succeeded. What are you doing here, anyway?"

Ferguson frankly showed his pleasure at the question.

"First of all," he began, "the doctors wound up by losing all hope for me. Gave me a few months at best, and that, after a course in sanitariums and a trip to Europe and another, to Hawaii. They tried electricity and forced feeding and fasting. I was a graduate of about everything in the curriculum. They kept me poor with their bills, till I went from the city to the country. The trouble with me was twofold; first I was a born workaholic; and next, I was living unnaturally—too much work, and responsibility and strain. I was managing editor of the Times-Tribune in San Francisco, and I wasn't strong enough for the strain. Of course my body went back on me, and my mind, too, for that matter. It had to be bolstered up with whisky, which wasn't good for it, and more than that, the living in clubs and hotels good for my stomach and the rest of me. So I quit, quite everything, absolutely, and came to live in the Valley of the Moon—that's the Indian name, you know, for Sonoma Valley. I lived in the lean-to the first year; then I built the cabin and sent for my books. I never knew what happiness was before, nor health. Look at me now and dare to tell me that I look forty-seven."

"I wouldn't give a day over forty," Daylight confessed.

"Yet the day I came here I looked nearer sixty, and that was fifteen years ago."

They talked along, and Daylight looked at the world from new angles. Here was a man, neither bitter nor cynical, who laughed at the city-dwellers and called them lunatics; a man who did not care for money, and in whom the lust for power had long since died.

It was not until ten o'clock that Daylight parted from Ferguson. As he rode along through the starlight, the idea came to him of buying the ranch on the other side of the valley. There was no thought in his mind of ever intending to live on it. His game was in San Francisco. But he liked the ranch, and as soon as he got back to the office he would open up negotiations with Hillard.

The time passed, and he played on at the game. San Francisco's attitude toward Daylight had undergone a change. While he, with his slinking buccannier methods, was a distinct menace to the more orthodox financial gamblers, he was nevertheless so grave a menace that they were glad enough to let him alone. He had already taught them the excellence of letting a sleeping dog lie.

Deeds Mason was still in the office. He had made no more overtures, discussed no more books. He had no active interest in her, and she was to him a pleasant memory of what had never happened, a joy, which, by his essential nature, he was barred from ever knowing. Yet, while his interest had gone to sleep and his energy was consumed in the endless battles he waged, he knew every trick of the light on her hair, every quick definite movement of movement, every line of her figure as expounded by her tailor-made gowns. Several times, six months or so apart, he had increased her salary, until now she was receiving ninety dollars a month. Beyond this he dared not go, though he got around it by making the work easier.

This he had accomplished after her return from a vacation, by retaining her substitute as an assistant. Also, he had changed his office suite, so that the two girls had a room by themselves. The more he saw of her, and the more he thought he knew of her, the more unapproachable did she seem to him. But since he had no intention of approaching her, this was anything but an unsatisfactory fact. He was glad he had her in his office, and hoped she'd stay, and that was about all.

Daylight did not improve with the passing years. The life was not good for him. He was growing stout and soft, and there was unwanted flabbiness in his muscles. The more he drank cocktails, the more he was compelled to drink in order to get the desired result, the inhibitions that assailed him down from the concert pitch of his operations. And with this went wine, too, at meals, and the long drinks after dinner of Scotch and soda at the Riverside. Then, too, his body suffered from lack of exercise; and, from lack of decent human associations, his moral fibers were weakening. Never a man to hide anything, some of his escapades became public, such as speeling, and of joy-rides in his big red motor car down to San Jose with companions distinctly sporty—incidents that were narrated, as good fun and comically in the newspapers.

CHAPTER XIII.

One Sunday, late in the afternoon, found Daylight across the bay in the Piedmont hills of Oakland. As usual, he was in a big motor car, though not his own, the guest of Swiftwater Bill, Lusk's own darling, who had come down to spend the clean-up of the seventh fortune wrung from the frozen Arctic gravel. It was a merry party, and they had made a merry day of it, circling the bay from San Francisco around by San Jose and up to Oakland, having been twice arrested for speeding, the third time, however, on the Harward stretch, running away with their captor. Fearing that a telephone message to arrest them had been flashed ahead, they had turned into the back-road through the hills, and now, rushing in upon Oakland by a new route, were boisterously discussing what disposition they should make of the constable.

"We'll come out at Blair Park in ten minutes," one of the men announced. "Look here, Swiftwater, there's a cross-road right ahead, with lots of gates, but I'll take us back-country into Berkeley. Then we can come back into Oakland from the other side, sneak across on the ferry, and send the machine back around tonight with the chauffeur."

But Swiftwater Bill failed to see why he should not go into Oakland by way of Blair Park, and so decided. The next moment, flying around a bend, the back-road they were not going to take appeared. Inside the gate, leaning out from her saddle and just closing it, was a young woman on a chestnut sorrel. With his first glimpse, Daylight felt there was something strangely familiar about her. The next moment, straightening up in the saddle with a movement he could not fail to identify, she put the horse into a gallop, riding away with her back toward them. It was Dede Mason—she remembered what Morrison had told him about her keeping a riding horse, and he was glad she had not seen him in this riotous company. Intervening trees at that moment shut her from view, and Swiftwater Bill plunged into the problem of disposing of their constable, while Daylight, leaning back with closed eyes, was still seeing Dede Mason gallop off down the country road.

Monday morning, coming in for dictation, he looked at her with new interest; though he gave no sign of it; and the stereotyped business passed off in the stereotyped way. But the following Sunday found him on a horse himself, across the bay and riding through the Piedmont hills. He made a long day of it, but no glimpse did he catch of Dede Mason, though he even took the back-road of many gates and rode on into Berkeley. It had been a fruitless day, so far as she was concerned; and yet not entirely fruitless, for he had enjoyed the open air and the horse under him to such purpose that, on Monday, his instructions were out to the dealers to look for the best, chestnut sorrel that money could buy. At odd times during the week he examined numbers of chestnut sorrels, tried several and was unsatisfied. It was not till Saturday that he came upon Bob. Daylight knew him for what he wanted the moment he laid eyes on him. A large horse for a riding animal, he was none too large for a big man like Daylight, in splendid condition, Bob's coat in the sunlight was a flame of fire, his arched neck a jeweled configuration.

Daylight examined the mane and found it, finer than any horse's hair he had ever seen. Also, his color was unusual in that it was almost asburn. While he ran his fingers through it, Bob turned his head and playfully nuzzled Daylight's shoulder.

"Saddle him up, and I'll try him," he told the dealer. "I wonder if he's used to spurs. No English saddle, mind. Give me a good Mexican and a curb bit—not too severe, seeing as he likes to rear."

Daylight, disappointed in the preparations, adjusting the curb strap and the stirrup length, and doing the clacking. He shook his hand at the martingale, but yielded to the dealer's advice to allow it to go on. And Bob, beyond spirited restlessness and a few playful attempts, gave no trouble. Nor in the hour's riding that followed, save for some permissible curvetting and prancing, did he misbehave. Daylight was delighted; the purchase was immediately made; and Bob, with riding gear and personal equipment, was dispatched across the bay forthwith to take up his quarters in the stables of the Oakland Riding Academy.

The next day being Sunday, Daylight was away early, crossing on the ferry and taking with him Wolf, the leader of his sled team, the one dog which he had selected to bring with him when he left Alaska. Quest as he would through the Piedmont hills and along the many-gated back-road to Berkeley, Daylight saw nothing of Dede Mason and her chestnut sorrel. But he had little time for disappointment, for his own chestnut kept him busy. At the end of half an hour of goodness Daylight, lured into confidence, was riding along at a walk and rolling a cigarette, with sleek knees and relaxed seat, the reins lying on the animal's neck. Bob whirled abruptly and with lightning swiftness, pivoting on his hind legs, his fore legs just lifted clear of the ground. Daylight kept his seat, but, beyond a futile reeve across the neck, did nothing to prevent the evolution.

"Well, Bob," he addressed the animal, at the same time wiping the sweat from his own eyes, "I'm free to confess that you're sure the blamedest all-fired quickest creature I ever saw. I guess the way to fix you is to keep the spur just a-touching—ah! you brute!"

For the moment the spur touched him, his left hind leg had reached forward in a kick that struck the stirrup a smart blow. Several times, out of curiosity, Daylight attempted the spur, and each time Bob's hoof landed the stirrup. Then Daylight, following the horse's example of the unexpected, suddenly drove both spurs into him and reached him underneath with the quirt.

"You ain't never had a real kicking before," he muttered, as Bob, thus rudely jerked out of the circle of his own impish mental processes, shot ahead.

Half a dozen times spurs and quirt bit into him, and then Daylight settled down to enjoy the magnificent gallop. No longer published, at the end of a half mile Bob eased down into a fast canter. Wolf, telling the rear, was catching up, and everything was going nicely. And when, at last, Daylight decided that the horse had had enough, he turned him around abruptly and put him into a gentle canter on the forward track. After a time, he reined in to a stop to see if he were breathing painfully. Standing for a minute, Bob turned his head and nuzzled his rider's stirrup in a regular, impatient way, as much as to intimate that it was time they were going on.

Vogel's Big City Minstrels.

One of the many features to be presented by John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels, which will appear at the Soisson Thursday, Oct. 26, is a beautiful and up-to-date dancing number, entitled, "The Great Event." The idea was conceived by Manager Vogel and arranged by Barney Fagin, the world's master producer of intricate dances and terpsichorean movements. The scene is laid at the famous Shapshard Bay race course, and the grandstand thoroughbreds are at the post awaiting the signal for the start, they get the word "They're off," hoofbeats are heard in the distance, and immediately after the finish the jockeys appear neatly attired in the regulation colors, representing the world's famous owners and stake winners: William Rowe, the famous and world-renowned solo clog dancer, has been engaged to rehearse and produce the act in the absence of Mr. Fagin, whose foreign engagements prevent his doing so.

Among the Players.

Gustave Frohman's production of "Father Jerome," with Orrin Johnson as the star, opened in Red Bank, N. J., the other night.

May Buckley, and Frederick Burton will be featured in "Partners," the dramatization of E. F. Roe's novel "He Fell in Love With His Wife."

Frederick Thompson has engaged Robert Drouet for a role of a newspaper reporter in W. B. Maloney's new play, "Graft," that is to be produced soon.

Harry Watson, Jr., who has been appearing in "The Follies of 1911," has been engaged by F. Ziegfeld, Jr., for Anna Held's company in "Miss Innocence."

Ben Greet has been given charge of the rehearsals of the company that is to support Mme. Simone in "The York, next Monday."

Georgia O'Ramey, who played Kit McNair in "Seven Days," has been engaged for one of the principal roles with Thomas A. Wise and John Barrymore in the cast of "Uncle Sam."

Before he leaves London for this country, Harry Lauder will have a fine advertisement for his tour in the shape of a "command" performance before the British Royal family.

On this ground the appeal was made and upheld. The court of appeals in rendering its decision made it plain that it thought the guilt of Ellison had been proved; nevertheless a technical error had been made and there was nothing to do but let the prisoner go.

CONVICTION OF MURDER QUASHED

LONDON, Oct. 20.—For the first time in the history of the English judiciary a conviction for murder has been quashed by the court of criminal appeals, the prisoner, the date of whose execution had been fixed, being released. Magistrates of all ranks are now urging members of Parliament to stop around the law that the court of criminal appeals may or may not try in such cases. As the law stands the appeal court has no option but to let the prisoner go.

SEAT CONTRACT HAS BEEN LET.

Steel Furniture Company of Grand Rapids Gets the Order

FOR 356 ORCHESTRA CHAIRS

There Will Be Class With a Cap, "C" to That New Basketball Hall—The Roof is Now Going On It and Those Pesky Pipes Are Here.

The basketball people have let the contract for the seats which are to be installed in the new West Side hall. The Steel Furniture Company of Grand Rapids got the order. It is for 356 orchestra chairs, veneered mahogany, guaranteed for 20 years, forming the seat and back, with the frame of strongest steel. J. L. Schick says the chairs are very substantial and should stand the strain. They were ordered only after the association had assurance that they would fit the bill. There is a hat rack under every seat, a convenience that will be appreciated by the guests who come to compose a basketball fan.

Besides the 356 reserved seats that will be provided an anxious and enthusiastic public at 50 cents per throw, there will be seven boxes for those that desire such accommodations. The box trade in Uniontown is one of the big end of the receipts and the association there has no trouble disposing of them at $75 for the season. This is an average of 1000 than 55 cents per game. In Uniontown it frequently happens that two parties will share a box between them.

The Connellsville management realizes that there isn't the box patronage here that exists in Uniontown, but is working on the theory that the seven boxes which are provided will not go begging. It is expected that the 50 cent seats will sell better here than they do at the county seat.

Those pesky iron pipes that are to support the roof arrived at last. Manager A. M. Haines of the construction company did not wait for them and had temporary scaffolding erected so the roof might be started. This work is well under way.

The basketball hall presents a busy scene. Carpenters are at work everywhere. The plumbers have also started. Among the wood workers the men are working on the roof, on the flooring, erecting the supports for the seats and providing for the seats themselves. Along the south side of the hall the seats are completed, as far as the carpenter work is concerned.

Caplain W. J. Durr has decided to locate in the Cunningham apartments on South Pittsburg street rather than the Brill residence in the Second Ward. He has moved already. J. Donchue, the star eastern center, will room at the Durr domicile and several other plays will likely follow suit.

Charley O'Donnell has written M. F. Bowers, sporting editor of the McKeesport News, that he will report to Uniontown as per schedule. This will not surprise those on the inside at the county seat who have not been worried over the reports that O'Donnell would not be in line. The old McKeesport team will be in trouble enough without Getzinger at center but if O'Donnell had not reported the quint would have been shot so full of holes there would have been nothing to it.

Charlton fans are not warming up to the basketball proposition as yet. It is said, and the Uniontown management, which turned its team over to that town, has been given the job of getting the fans to boost the game. Charlton are in some good sporting towns and if basketball fails to take it will surprise the devotees.

Even New York Raps Snodgrass

With that spirit of eminent fairness that marks the average baseball fan, the enthusiasts who have watched the games from long distances have, as a rule, withheld judgment regarding the alleged attempt of Fred Snodgrass to spike Frank Baker in Tuesday's game. That Snodgrass attempted to pull off a questionable play and deserves the censure meted out to him by Athletic followers, is indicated by the editorial attitude of the New York Sun. The Sun is ultra-conservative and the following paragraph would not have appeared without sufficient cause.

"Whether the Giants win the baseball championship of the world, or not, their reputation for 'mucker ball' has been gloriously sustained. A crowd of New York 'fans' is not squeamish, but the Snodgrass-Baker incident on Tuesday disgusted even the most hardened rooters."

"Looks as if Mr. Snodgrass' zeal has made him a full-fledged member of the 'in-bad' club."

If C. Hays, the Connellsville Councilman who saw the contest, says that Baker had Snodgrass by yards and his dive, feet first into the sack, had all the earmarks of a premeditated attempt to injure an opposing player.

Crack Shot Gets Big Hawk

William Wable, one of Rockwood's expert marksmen, shot a monster chicken hawk last Friday afternoon while hunting in the vicinity of the John M. Critchfield farm in Milford township, Somerset county. He saw the hawk initiating fancy acrobatic stunts overhead at a height almost beyond range of his trusty Winchester. He thought it would be the next thing to a waste of ammunition to risk a shot at the fowl poacher, but he finally decided to do so. Bang! went the gun. The big hawk started to flounder about in mid-air, and every now and then it tried to spread its wings and keep aloft. But its life's blood was gradually ebbing away from a gunshot wound that was inflicted near the center of its breast. The big bird was mortally hurt, but still struggled desperately when it struck the earth with a thud.

Once on the ground, it seemed to have taken a new grip on life, scrambled to its feet, and showed fight. The hawk was finally dispatched with a club by Roy Wilt, Mr. Wable's nephew, who had accompanied his uncle. This same hawk has a record of depredations that extends over a period of 12 years. At every favorable opportunity it swooped down into Mr. Critchfield's barnyard and fastened its talons upon one of his chickens, and before he could procure his gun it was floating away beyond harm's reach with its prey. Mr. Critchfield declares that no less than a dozen and a half of his chickens were carried away by the hawk every year. He, for one, has heartily congratulated Mr. Wable upon his skill as a marksman. The wings of the hawk spread out to their full width, measure 45 inches from tip to tip. The dead body of the hawk has been sold to Proprietor John Lohgity of the Merchants' Hotel at Rockwood, who will have it stuffed and mounted and will then exhibit it in his hotel office.

HEARING POSTPONED

In the Freight Rate Protest for Three Weeks.

Information reached Pittsburgh coal men yesterday that the proposed hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington, regarding the late freight rates from the Pittsburgh district and ore rates from the lakes to Pittsburgh, would not be held on Monday of next week, as had been planned during the summer, but had been postponed until November 13.

The change in date is regarded as an important concession for the coal men who gain, thereby, additional time to present their case. Had the hearing been held next Monday they would have been forced to have confined the case to within four days. With the later date it is expected that fully 10 days can be given to the matter.

John W. Botteau, one of those actively interested in the matter, stated last night that the change in date had been thought best for all concerned. The complaints of the coal operators have been pressing hard for adjustment, by the commission, for years. They are demanding that the railroads give them a tonnage freight rate from Pittsburgh to the lakes that equals that given to competing points. As it is now, they say, the railroads grant low rates to shippers from competing points and then more than make it up by the excessive charges levied against shippers of the Pittsburgh district. All they want, they say, is a square deal, an equal rate.

The additional statement was made last night that the iron ore shippers have joined issue in a measure and will demand modification of the rates for ore, declaring that they can no longer stand the excessive tonnage rate for this commodity to Pittsburgh, and hope to compete with more favored manufacturers of pig iron. The decision expected will be one of the most important for the future of Pittsburgh that has ever been handed down, these shippers say.

COAL TRACTS DIVIDED.

Were Once Held by J. B. F. Rinehart of Wayneburg.

A ruling was handed down recently by Judge Richard S. Holt, of Beaver county, granting a partition of the Morris township, Greene county, coal block. The partition was made for the partition of the coal by Jacob Younger, who owns 60 acres of it. The tract contains 8,500 acres and is owned by 55 different persons. The coal is under 93 farms.

This block of coal was purchased at the beginning of the mining industry in Greene county by J. B. F. Rinehart, cashier of the defunct Farmers & Drovers National Bank. Later Rinehart sold interests of the coal and it has been alleged, paid political debts with part of the property. These interests have been sold and resold. The property was first purchased at $20 an acre, but is now $150 an acre now. Rinehart owned a large interest in the block at the time of the failure of the Farmers & Drovers Bank, but recently was compelled to deed his interests over to receiver of the defunct institution.

An important new musical production by Henry W. Savage will be "Little Boy Blue," a romantic opera which ran in Vienna for over a year under the title of "Lord Piccolo." The score is by Henri Berony, the famous Viennese composer, and the American adaptation is by A. E. Thomas and Edward Paulson.
